You find yourself standing alone in a mundane world, surrounded by the familiar ambiance of your average life. The sun filters through tree branches, casting soft shadows. Yet, a sudden, shimmering light fills your vision, blinding you momentarily. As it dissipates, you gaze around in confusion, realizing the landscape has transformed into something etherealbleaching to a dazzling, pure white. At first, it feels invasive, disorienting, but it softens into a comforting embrace. You catch your breath, a light chuckle spilling forth as another wave of ticklish energy washes through your limbs.

"What...what's happening?" you murmur, your mind racing. But as your cheeks begin presenting large red circles, mirroring the joyous expressions around you, a calming warmth fills your heart. You struggle to cling onto fragments of memories, human memories, but they slip through your fingers like sand. They feel distant, unreal.

Your body? Its time you embraced your true self!" whispers an unseen voicet help but giggle, your laugh blending into the symphony of light around you.

Instinctively, you reach up to trace the outline of your face, but instead, your fingers land on a glowing halo floating gracefully over your head. "Whoa..."  Then, with a gentle stretch and not a hint of pain, six magnificent wings burst forth from your back, each feather pristine white with shimmering golden edges. The overwhelming sensation sends delightful shivers down your spine, and the transformation seems to sing songs of encouragement into your very soul.

"Embrace it! Youhovering around 5.4 feet tall gives you a fresh perspective, a different understanding of life.

"Wait... I-I dona truth that invigorates you more than you could have imagined. "Imemories of your angelic name, echoing through the divine halls of Heaven. "Oh! I love it here!" The exhilaration swells, and laughter escapes, rich with joy; you revel in the delightful ticklishness surrounding your wings, cherishing every feathered breath.

Your new body exudes power and gracere beautiful!" she proclaims, her voice as soothing as sunlight filtering through clouds. "Welcome home!" In that moment, every whisper of doubt fades, and you step forward, wings unfurled, into a world of cotton-candy clouds and sparkling laughter, knowing this timeholds your true happiness.